Imagine a world where everyone got along and went out of their way to support each other. A world where resources and support were abundant and patients were happy. Wouldn't it be a joy to work in a world like that?

THE REALITY IS THAT NURSES WORK IN UNPREDICTABLE WORLDS

We don't always support each other, have the necessary resources, and struggle to meet the increasing needs of patients. Ultimately, these struggles lead to stress and over time, and stress leads to fatigue, burnout, and exhaustion. The good news is that despite the increasing demands, nurses CAN thrive. This presentation provides nurses with simple strategies to flip the switch from exhausted to extraordinary!

During this program, you will hear about the leading causes of fatigue and burnout while acquiring the tools to develop a practical action plan to reduce these common issues in the workplace.
